

Working Prototype Known Problems Report

Smart Irrigation Frontend

Once the user logs in, they are taken to a page where they can view charts presenting sensor data. To view these charts, you press a button. After viewing one of the charts and closing the pop up containing the viewed chart, the buttons are unresponsive for a few seconds. We are not sure if you need to click the buttons a certain amount of times or just wait a certain amount of time to get them working again, but they always regain functionality. This problem can be a nuisance to the user, but it does not break the web application.